LOK SABHA

The following Bills were introduced in Lok Sabha on the 21st November, 1986:—

BILL No. 82 of 1986

A Bill to provide for taking over of all private schools and to provide for uniform syllabus in all schools throughout the country

Be it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

- 1. (1) This Act may be called the Schools (Taking Over and Uniform Syllabus) Act, 1986.
 - (2) It extends to the whole of India.
 - (3) It shall come into force at once.
 - 2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(i) 'private school' shall mean and include schools established by private organisations, whether run on public school pattern or not, or by religious organisations, as the case may be; and

Short title, extent and commencement.

> Definitions.

(ii) 'Government' means a State Government or the Central Government, as the case may be.

Ban on opening of private schools.

3. The opening of new private schools shall be banned.

Private schools to to be taken over by the Gov-

4. All the private schools shall be taken over by the Government.

Uniform Syllabus in all Schools.

ernment.

5. There shall be uniform syllabus for respective classes in all schools throughout the country:

Provided that moral and cultural education shall be included as one of the subjects for all classes.

Opening of new schools.

6 The Government shall open schools after considering the population and requirements of an area.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

It is found that the present system of education in the country has not delivered the goods expected of it as per the Preamble to the Constitution. Until and unless the uniform system of education is brought out in the country, it cannot become a source of national integration and a way to secular society with socialistic pattern and fully democratic character. The present system of education, being commercial and communal, depending upon the aims and objectives of the organisations imparting education, is restricted. Also the present education being too costly in the name of public school pattern, common man is helpless to educate his children. This helps in increasing illiteracy amongst common people in spite of the best efforts of the Government to remove it from the country. This has also created classes in the society and the country.

In order to create a classless society and new environment, it is essential that all the schools, whether private or public, shall be taken over by the Government. When all schools come under one management, it would be easy to have uniform syllabus throughout the country.

Hence this Bill.

New Delhi; June 26, 1986. BALASAHEB VIKHE PATIL

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Clause 4 of the Bill provides that all private schools shall be taken over by the Government. The State Governments, shall, in respect of their States incur expenditure in taking over of schools. The Central Government shall, in respect of Union territories, incur expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India. Clause 5 provides that moral and cultural education shall be imparted in all schools. For this purpose, teachers may have to be appointed. Clause 6 provides that Central Government or the State Governments shall open schools after considering the population and requirements of an area. The Bill, if enacted would involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India.

An annual recurring expenditure of rupees ten lakhs is likely to be involved from the Consolidated Fund of India.

Non-recurring expenditure to the tune of rupees one lakh is also likely to be incurred.

BILL No. 110 of 1986

A Bill further to amend the Maternity Benefit Act, 1961.

Bu it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Maternity Benefit (Amendment) Act, 1986.

Short title.

53 of 1961,

2. In section 5 of the Maternity Benefit Act, 1961, in sub-section (1), before the Explanation, the following proviso shall be inserted, namely:—

Amendment of section 5.

"Provided that a woman shall be entitled to maternity benefit for her first, second and third deliveries but shall be entitled to only one-half of the maternity benefits, as admissible under the Act, for her fourth delivery and for the fifth and subsequent deliveries, she shall not be entitled to any other benefit except the maternity leave admissible under the Act but such leave shall be without wages, so however, that availing of such leave shall not adversely effect her other service conditions."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Maternity Benefit Act, 1961, was enacted to provide inter-alia certain maternity benefits to women working in certain establishments for certain period. In the context of our efforts to discourage growth of population, it is necessary to provide against a situation where the benefits admissible under the Act are taken as incentives for having large families at the cost of the society.

Hence this Bill.

BILL No. 122 of 1986

A Bill to amend the Prevention of Insults to National Honour Act, 1971.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Prevention of Insults to National Honour (Amendment) Act, 1986.

Short title and commen_ cement.

- (2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.
- 2. In section 2 of the Prevention of Insults to National Honour Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as the principal Act), for the words "three years, or with fine", the words "five years, or with fine upto rupees five thousand" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 2.

- 3. In section 3 of the principal Act, for the words "three years, or with fine", the words "five years, or with fine upto rupees five thousand" shall be substituted.
- Amendment of section 3.

Insertion

section 4.

of new

4. After section 3 of the principal Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Punish_ ment for recommitting the offence.

"4. Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, any person, who is sentenced for committing an offence as provided under section 2 or section 3 of the Act, if recommits the offence, he/she shall be deprived of his/her right to vote or contest any election to any local body, Legislature of a State and to Parliament".

69 of 1971.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

A lot of disrespect is shown by a number of people on a number of occasions to the National Anthem and the National Flag. Even during emergency when it was made compulsory in all the cinema houses that after completion of the film show the National Anthem should be screened, people left the cinema hall before the National Anthem was over. Recently in Kerala State one child refused to sing National Anthem and the action taken by the State authorities concerned was challenged in the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court's ruling in the case has been unfortunate.

In view of this, it has become necessary that stringent punishment be awarded to those who show disrespect to the National Flag or the National Anthem.

BILL No. 127 of 1986

A Bill further to amend the Constitution of India.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

- 1. (1) This Act may be called the Constitution (Amendment) Act, 1986.
- (2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.
 - 2. Article 370 of the Constitution shall be omitted.

111 G of I-2

Short title and commencement.

Omission of article 370,

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Aricle 370 has no meaning in the present situation. The State of Jammu and Kashmir has become part and parcel of India. Number of elections were held during the last 39 years which have proved that Jammu and Kashmir is as good a State of India as other States. The State has lost many opportunities due to this article as no big industrialists are interested in setting up industries in the State under the present situation. The State has thus remained industrially backward. People of the State are suffering from such step-motherly treatment. This article gives Pakistan an opportunity to raise the Kashmir question on various international forums. The people of the State are interested in removing this article immediately so that they can feel proud of being part and parcel of India.

Hence, this is the right time to omit this article so that the people of the State enjoy the fruit of the country as are being enjoyed by the people of other States.

Hence this Bill.

BILL No. 121 of 1986

A Bill to make military training compulsory for all able-bodied students.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Compulsory Military Training for Students Act, 1986.

(2) It extends to the whole of India.

Short title, extent and commencement.

- (3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.
- 2. Military training to all able-bodied students shall be compulsory from tenth class onwards or at the age of fifteen years whichever is less.

Compulsory military training to all ablebodied students.

Compulsory subject on military training in schools.

- 3. (1) A compulsory subject on military training shall also be introduced from tenth class onwards.
- (2) The school leaving certificate shall indicate whether the student has passed the military training or not.

Compulsory subject on defence in colleges.

4. One compulsory subject on defence shall be introduced in the Colleges.

Power to formulate scheme and establishment of institutions.

5. The Central Government shall formulate a scheme and establish necessary institutions to give effect to the provisions of sections 2 to 4.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Military training instils a sense of discipline and develops character, mental robustness and physical fitness in youth and makes them better citizens. This will also enable students to make their career in future after school education. The initial training provided to the students will also make their recruitment easy in the three services. In addition, the military training to the students at the school stage will help the country even if they choose other jobs. This force can be utilised later on as Home Guards and can assist the armed forces and will be a second line of defence. Not only this, the military training will also be helpful when they go for jobs in C.R.P.F. and B.S.F. or even in police services. The present provision for N C.C. training in some schools and colleges is not sufficient as it is not a compulsory one and it has not achieved, the purpose. The military training at school stage will also help at the time of relief operations during natural calamities like floods, cyclones, earthquakes, famines, etc. A comprehensive scheme under which all persons should get military training which could be very useful, is needed for our country.

Hence this Bill.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Clause 2 of the Bill provides for compulsory military training for all able-bodied students from tenth class onwards or at the age of fifteen years whichever is less. Clause 3 provides that compulsory subject on military training shall be introduced from tenth class onwards. Clause 4 provides for introduction of a compulsory subject on defence in colleges. Clause 5 provides for establishment of necessary institutions for imparting military training. The Bill, therefore, if enacted, will involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India. It is likely to involve a recurring expenditure of about rupees one crore per annum.

It is also likely to involve non-recurring expenditure of about rupees twenty-five lakhs.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 5 of the Bill provides for formulating a scheme for imparting compulsory military training to all able-bodied students from tenth class onwards. The scheme has to be administered by the Central Government. The delegation of legislative power is of a normal procedural character.

CHAPTER II

DRAWING UP OF SCHEMES AND CONSTITUTION OF BOARDS

6. (1) The Central Government may, in consultation with the State Governments and subject to the condition of previous publication, and after consulting the Central Construction Labour Board, frame a scheme to be called the Construction Workers (Regulation of Employment and Conditions of Service) Scheme, 1986 for ensuring greater regularity of employment, for regulating the employment of construction workers and for prescribing conditions of service for the construction workers in the State.

Scheme for ensuring regular employment to workers.

- (2) In particular, the Scheme may provide—
- (a) for the application of the scheme to such classes of construction workers and employers as may be specified therein;
- (b) for defining the obligation of employers and construction workers, subject to the fulfilment of which the scheme may apply to them and the circumstances in which the scheme shall cease to apply to any construction worker of employer;
- (c) for regulating the recruitment and entry into the scheme of construction workers, (and the registration of construction workers and employers) including the maintenance of registers, the removal, either temporarily or permanently of names from the registers and the imposition of fees for registration;
- (d) for regulating the employment of dock workers, whether registered or not, and the terms and conditions of such employment, including rates of remuneration, hours of work and conditions as to holidays and pay in respect thereof;
- (e) for ensuring that, in respect of period during which employment, or full employment, is not available to construction workers, to whom the scheme applies and who are available for work, such workers shall, subject to the conditions of the Scheme, receive a minimum pay:

- (f) for prohibiting, restricting or otherwise controlling the employment of construction workers to whom the scheme does not apply and the employment of construction workers by employers to whom the Scheme does not apply;
- (g) for creating such fund or funds as may be necessary or expedient for the purposes of the Scheme and for the administration of such fund or funds:
- (h) for the training and welfare of construction workers, in so far as satisfactory provision therefor does not exist;
 - (i) for the welfare of the officers and other staff of the Board;
- (j) for health and safety measures in places where construction workers are employed in so far as satisfactory provisions therefor do not exist:
- (k) for the manner in which, and the persons by whom, the cost of operating the Scheme is to be defrayed;
- (1) for constituting the authority to be responsible for the administration of the Scheme;
- (m) for such other incidental and supplementary matters as may be necessary or expedient for the purposes of the Scheme;
- (n) for setting up authorities at state levels to be responsible for the administration of the Scheme at the State levels:
- (o) for constituting adjudicating and appellate bodies to deal with disputes that may arise between the construction workers and the employers or between the construction workers and the Board.
- (3) Any contravention of any provision of the Scheme shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months in respect of first contravention or six months in respect of any subsequent contravention, or with fine upto rupees five thousand in respect of first contravention or rupees ten thousand in respect of any subsequent contravention, or with both.

Variation of Schema.

- 7. (1) The State Government may in consultation with the State Construction Labour Board, established under section 8, and by notification in the Official Gazette and subject to the condition of previous publication and with the prior approval of the Central Government, which shall be accorded after consulting the Central Construction Labour Board, amend, alter or vary the Scheme made by it for the purpose of more effective implementation of the Scheme having regard to any special condition prevailing in the State and for conferring additional benefits to the construction workers.
- (2) Pending the final publication of the Scheme by the State Government, the provisions of the Scheme framed by the Central Government shall be applicable in that State.

8. (1) The Central Government shall, by notification in the Official Gazette, establish a Construction Labour Board for each State by such name as may be specified in the notification.

State Construction Labour Boards,

9 of 1948.

- (2) Every Board shall be a body corporate as defined in section 5A of the Dock Workers (Regulation of Employment) Act, 1948.
- (3) Every Board shall consist of a President to be appointed from amongst its members by rotation annually and such members shall be appointed by the Central Government in consultation with the State Government:

Provided that every Board shall include such number of members representing both the State Government and the employers of construction workers as not to be in excess of the number of members representing the construction workers.

- (4) The Central Government shall appoint Construction Labour Boards, on the same lines as provided under sub-sections (1) to (3), for each of the Union territories of Delhi, Chandigarh, Pondicherry and Goa, Daman and Diu and for such other Union territories as the Central Government may decide.
- 9. (1) The Central Government shall, by notification in the official Gazette, establish a Central Construction Labour Board consisting of a President to be appointed from any of its members by rotation annually and such members shall be appointed by it.

Central Construction Labour Board.

- (2) The board shall have such number of members representing construction workers as is equal to or in excess of the total number of members representing both the Government and the employers.
- (3) The representation of workers shall include at least one representative from each of the State Governments and of the Union territories where a Construction Labour Board has been set up.
- 10. (1) Every State Government shall after consulting the State Construction Labour Board, by notification in the Official Gazette and subject to the condition of prior approval of the Central Government, set up tripartite bodies, consisting of representatives of the State Government, employers and constructions workers at the district level and below on the same pattern as the State Construction Labour Board.

Tripartite bodies.

- (2) The representatives of workers shall be elected on the basis of secret ballot, in the manner to be prescribed.
- 11. (1) The Construction Labour Boards set up in a State and/or a Union territory shall be responsible for administering the scheme and shall exercise such powers and perform such functions as may be conferred on them by the Scheme.

Functions of the Boards,

(2) The tripartite bodies set up under sub-section (1) of section 10 shall be responsible for administering the Scheme in their respective areas.

- (3) The Central Construction Labour Board shall be a coordinating and advisory body without executive functions and the entire expenditure on the running of the Central Board shall be borne by the Central Government.
- (4) No decision of the Boards, which is prejudicial to the interests of construction workers generally, shall be implemented except with the concurrence of the representatives of the workers on the concerned Board.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The construction industry employs, next only to agriculture, the largest number of workers in our country. This industry covers a variety of workers and operations ranging from construction of dams, power houses and bridges, harbours, roads, railway tracks and runways to factories and offices, schools, hospitals, hotels and ordinary residential buildings. These activities cover the entire length and breadth of our country. Most of these operations are seasonal and at times involves fluctuations in the employment pattern.

The nature of the construction industry being so different from other occupations, the normal patterns of relationship between the employers and employees are not relevant. Frequent changes take place n the employers as far as the workmen are concerned and in the workmen as far as the employers are concerned. In this industry the product of the industry remains stationary while the employers and the employees move out after completion of the work to different locations and may be, to different activities. Because of its seasonal nature and the uncertainty of continued availability of work both for the employers and the workmen, it has become necessary to regulate the industry.

The exact or even the approximate number of persons employed in this industry is not known. In the words of the National Commission on Labour the last census (1961) estimated that over two million workers were employed in major sectors of construction and maintenance. According to the estimates of the Planning Commission the construction industry was expected to have added about 2.3 millions work opportunities during the Third Five Year Plan. Of the 24.46 crore economically active population reported in the 1981 census, 35.65 lakhs were in construction of which 10 per cent were women. Another estimate, based on the assumption that every one lakh rupec worth of construction generates 3100 mandays of unskilled labour and 1300 mandays of technical/managerial personnel, puts the economically active population engaged in construction in 1982-83 at 1.133 crores. Thus the estimates of employment vary widely. The Pocket Book of Labour Statistics 1984 published by the Labour Bureau, Simla estimates emplayment in construction at the end of March, 1982 at 1.112 millions in the public sector and 71 thousand in the private sector. Considering that a very large portion of the construction activity takes place in the private sector in the rural areas and in non-project activities, as also house buildings in the urban areas also, the figures of the Labour Bureau in respect of the private sector could be off the mark. It may be noticed that a large portion of the total outlay on plan and non-plan activities of Governments and also private investment is spent on construction activities An estimate of employment in the industry for the country as a whole at about 1.5 crores will appear reasonable. 10 per cent of this would constitute women workers. It is no doubt true that a very high percentage of the work force in the construction industry would be of the unskilled type who do the work of helpers or are engaged in other unskilled activities and may seek other avocations, particularly in agriculture, during the slack season.

It is also necessary to recognise that when we refer to the construction industry, we also include in it persons engaged in quarrying, stone breaking and stone-crushing and those engaged in the brick-kiln industry. Despite their large numbers, the work force is highly unorganised. The results of verification of membership of Central Trade Union organisations as on 31-12-1980 undertaken by the Chief Labour Commissioner (Central) show that the verified membership of workers in the building, Civil Engineering and public works industry as also in the brick-kiln industry adds up to a total of less than one lakh. Even this may be made up predominantely of workers in the organised sector of the industry largely under Government Departments or in public sector corporations engaged in construction activities.

It is no doubt true that a number of labour laws can be said to apply to the workers in the construction industry, such as the Minimum Wages Act, 1948, the Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act. 1970, the Inter-State Migrant Workmen (Regulation of Employment and Conditions of Service) Act, 1979, the Equal Remuneration Act, 1976. etc. and in certain exceptional cases, the Employees Provident Fund Act. the Employees State Insurance Act, the Payment of Gratuity Act and the like. Despite this in actual practice the workmen in this industry are totally neglected and helpless. The nature of the industry, the shifting employer-employee relationship, the seasonal and discontinuous nature of employment, the general apathy of the labour administration, and above all, their total lack of organisation have resulted in the bulk of the workmen in the industry not merely being denied their rights and benefits under these statutes but also even the minimum wages prescribed under law. The judgments of the Supreme Court in the Asiad Case and the Bandhana Mukthi Morcha case are a standing endorsement and indictment of the conditions of these workmen, even in the capital city of Delhi.

Another major contributing cause to this state of affairs is the total inapplicability of the normal type of labour laws to the situation obtaining in the construction industry. If the benefits of labour legislation have to reach this large mass of workers, it is then necessary that the law should take note of the unique features of the industry and should provide not merely for welfare of the workmen, but also for the regulation of employment itself in the industry. Such regulation could not be left to be taken care of by the employers or by the administrative heirarchy, but must be entrusted to an autonomous body statutorily set up and consisting of representatives of the workers, Government and the employers. Arrangements for regulating employment on the basis of compulsory registration of the employers and of the workmen, restriction on employment in the industry to only those workers who are registered under the law to be employed by employers who are also registered under the law, equitable sharing of the available employment on the basis of rotational booking of workmen category-wise, vesting of responsibility for determining and disbursement of wages in the autonomous body, provision of all facilities including social security and a minimum guarantee of employment by the autonomous body are some of the features that must be incorporated in a law that must be centrally enacted and implemented through a statutory constituted body at the national level for purposes of co-ordination and similar bodies at the level of State Governments/Union territory administration for purposes of implementation.

For the purposes of the law, there is no need to bring in the concept of the principal employer, unlike in the Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970. The actual employer-employee relation subsists, howsoever temporarily, between the actual contractor who executes the work and the concerned workmen and it is the contractor who should be responsible as employer for fulfilling all the obligations cast on the employees. In the case of a private individual who undertakes a construction activity say building a house, directly not through a contractor, he will be treated as his own contractor and thus as employer under the law.

While there are a few laws purporting to relate, inter alia, to regulation of employment such as the Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970, the Inter State Migrant Workmen (Regulation of Employment and Conditions of Service) Act, 1979, etc., the proposed law for the construction workers is patterned on the lines of the Dock Workers (Regulation of Employment) Act, 1948. In fact, the conditions obtaining among the dock workers before implementation of the above law were similar to the conditions that now obtain in the construction industry, the only difference being that the construction industry is spread over the length and breadth of the country unlike the dock industry which is confined to the ports.

Clauses (a), (d), (e) and (f) of article 39 enjoin upon the State to direct its policy towards securing (a) that the citizens, men and women equally, have a right to an adequate means of livelihood; (d) that there should be equal pay for equal work for both men and women; (e) that the health and strength of workers, men and women, and the tender age of children are not abused and that citizens are not forced by economic necessity to enter avocations unsuited to their age or strength; (f) that children are given opportunities and facilities to develop in a healthy manner and in conditions of freedom and dignity and that childhood and youth are protected against exploitation and against moral and material abandonment.

Article 41 directs the State to make effective provision for securing the right to work, to education and to public assistance in cases of unemployment, old-age, sickness and disablement, and in other cases of undeserved want.

Article 42 provides that the State shall make provision for securing just and humane conditions of work and for maternity relief.

Article 43 commends that the State shall endeavour to secure, by suitable legislation or economic organisation or in any other way, to all workers, agricultural, industrial or otherwise, work, a living wage, conditions of work ensuring a decent standard of life and full enjoyment of leisure and social and cultural opportunities.

Article 43A provides that the State shall take steps, by suitable legislation or in any other way, to secure the participation of workers in the management of undertakings, establishments or other organisations engaged in any industry.

Having regard to the abovesaid obligations of the State, and the need to secure to citizens engaged in construction industry as construction workers, the rights which are latent in the abovesaid provisions, it has been felt that a central legislation for construction labour is a Constitutional imperative and hence this legislation.

The Bill seeks to achieve the above objectives.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Clause 6(1) of the Bill provides for the framing of a Scheme to be called the Construction Workers (Regulation of Employment and Conditions of Service) Scheme, 1986 by the Central Government. Clause 6(2)(c) provides for the registration of Construction Workers and for imposition of fees for registration. Clause 6(2) (e) provides for payment of a minimum pay to construction workers during the period they remain unemployed. Clause 6(2)(g) provides for the creation of fund or funds for the purposes of the Scheme and for the administration of such funds. Clause 6(2) (h) provides for the training and welfare of the construction workers. Clause 6(2)(i) provides for the welfare of the officers and other staff of the Construction Labour Boards. Clause 6(2) (j) provides for health and safety measures for construction workers. Clause 6(2)(1) provides for constitution of an authority to administer the Scheme. Clause 6(2)(o) provides for the constitution of adjudicating and appellate bodies to deal with the disputes arising between construction workers and the employers or between the construction workers and the Board. Clause 8(1) provides for the establishment of Construction Labour Boards. Clause 9(1) provides for the establishment of a Central Construction Labour Board. Clause 10(1) provides for the constitution of tripartite bodies. Clause 11(3) provides that the expenditure on the running of the Central Construction Labour Board shall be borne by the Central Government. The expenditure on the Construction Labour Boards and tripartite bodies set up in the States shall be porne by the respective State Governments and the Central Government may also have to provide some assistance to the State Governments for carrying out the purposes of the Bill. The Bill, therefore, if enacted, will involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India. It is likely to involve a recurring expenditure of about rupees one crore per annum.

It is also likely to involve a non-recurring expenditure of about rupees ten lakhs.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 6 of the Bill provides for framing of a Scheme for construction workers. Clause 10 provides for the election of representatives of workers to the tripartite bodies. Clause 11(1) provides that the Construction Labour Boards shall be responsible for administering the Scheme and shall exercise such powers and perform such functions as may be conferred on them by the Scheme. The delegation of legislative power is of a normal character.

BILL No. 120 of 1986

A Bill further to amend the Constitution of India.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

- 1. This Act may be called the Constitution (Amendment) Act, 1986.
- 2. In article 111 of the Constitution, for the words "and the President shall", the words "and the President shall, within a period of seven days," shall be substituted.

Short title.

Amendment of article 111.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Article 111 of the Constitution provides that when a Bill has been passed by the Houses of Parliament, it shall be presented to the President, and the President shall declare either that he assents to the Bill, or that he withholds assent therefrom; but it does not provide for a situation where the President neither gives nor withholds his assent to a Bill and adopts a method of delaying action under this Article. It is therefore, necessary that a maximum period of seven days should be specified for taking action by the President in either way under the said article.

Hence this Bill.

Впл No. 129 от 1986

A Bill to validate the Travancore Christian Succession Act, 1916.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Thirty-seventh Year of the Republic of India as follows:--

1. (1) This Act may be called the Travancore Christian Succession Validation Act, 1986.

(2) It shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st day of April, 1951.

2. Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force or any judgement of any court, the Travancore Christian Succession Act, 1916, shall be deemed to have been in force from the 1st day of April, 1951 to the 24th day of February, 1986.

Short title and commencement.

Validation of the Travancore Christian Succession Act, 1916.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The judgement of the Supreme Court on 24th February, 1986 holding that the Travancore Christian Succession Act, 1916 should be deemed to have been repealed on 1st April, 1951 when the Part B States (laws) Act, 1951, came into force and the Indian Succession Act, 1925 should be deemed to have come into force on that date has created a disturbing situation in respect of intestate succession of property among the Christians in Travancore. As a result of this judgement all transactions with respect to intestate succession of property concluded during the last 35 years are open to challenge in a Court of law because of the retrospective effect being given to the judgement. This will open the flood-gate of litigation which will involve father and daughter, sister and brother and so on and so forth. The traditional harmony and goodwill that exists in the Christian families is likely to get disrupted and this will lead to social tension and economic ruin.

The validation of the Travancore Christian Succession Act, 1916, through a legislation during the period between 1st April, 1951 and 24th February, 1986, the day on which the judgement was delivered by the Supreme Court, has therefore become necessary in order to avoid the serious consequences resulting from the retrospective operation of the law.

This Bill seeks to achieve the above objective.
